I receive my PhD in Computer Science in 2000. Since 1995 I have been working in Natural Language Processing in different areas: Machine Translation, Document Clustering and Information Extraction. Since 2008 my research interests include Natural Language Processing for clinical texts written in Spanish. I have published many papers in relevant conferences specialized in NLP such as: ACL, COLING, LREC, RANLP. I have published 12 papers in different journals ranked in the Journal Citation Reports. I have participated in several national and international research projects in the area of information extraction, document clustering, clinical text mining and machine translation. As principal researcher I have been in 6 projects.
